Description
Highlights the complexities and contradictions of British and Indian civilizing missions in South Asia.

Civilizing Missions in Colonial and Postcolonial South Asia: From Improvement to Development offers a series of analyses that highlights the complexities of British and Indian civilizing missions in original ways and through various historiographical approaches. The book applies the concept of the civilizing mission to a number of issues in the colonial and postcolonial eras in South Asia: economic development, state-building, pacification, nationalism, cultural improvement, gender and generational relations, caste and untouchability, religion and missionaries, class relations, urbanization, NGOs and civil society.

Readership: Historians and other scholars interested in colonialism, nationalism, civil society and non-governmental organizations in South Asia during the colonial and postcolonial eras.
